The non-confidence motion was introduced by CCF leader Robert Strachan when estimates for the attorney general's representative forms allegations made a fine, last-rock shot count to defeat Saskatchewan 10-7.

Saskatchewan soored on seven Robert Strachan when estimates for the attorney-general's department came before the House at the start of the afternoon sitting.

Mr. Strachan moved that Mr. Bonner's $12,500 salary be cut by $1 — the traditional parliamentary motion of non-confidence.

"He has violated his trust and he should be relieved of his office," the opposition leader said. When a standing vote on the motion was called, Mr. Shafpr and Mr. Corbett immediately left the chamber. Mr. Sharp had gone out a short time before.

The final rotation when estimates a former Liberal member Gordon in the legislature in February, 1955, the government had immediately set up a royal commission inquiry into the granting of forest management licences.

But in December, 1955, when Mr. Sturdy presented a statutory declaration and offered to turn over 198 pieces of documentary evidence, the government brushed the matter aside. Russ 'Fiction' PARIS (Reuters)-The permanent council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization tonight rejected Russia's latest terms for an East-West summit meeting.

Cold War End

"The West cannot accept a summit conference unless there is some agreement on matters NO ELECTION of substance, including European security and German re SAYS BENNETT unification," a NATO spokes man said.

The move followed a statement by State Secretary Dulles in Washington today that Russia's proposal for a pre-summit foreign ministers' meeting is unacceptable to the United States on terms the Russians laid down.

Dulles told a press conference the U.S. is in favor of a summit meeting and wants preparations for it that will lead to substan-tial achievements for peace. GREAT DANGER

But the U.S., he said, wants no part of any fraud or hoax which would merely fool people.

Dulles said the great danger in the present East-West debate has ended for the reality of the cold war.

Dulles declared flatly that at present he knows of no major issues which in the light of known Soviet and Western positions offered any likelihood of agreement at a summit conference.

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

ish Columbia are striking for a wage increase of 40 per cent or an income of $8,800 a year.

They have been offered an increase of 19 per cent or an average income of $7,580.40 a year. But that high figure, far in excess of most Canadians' income, is not enough for

It would be quite easy, of course, for the B.C. Electric to raise wages 40 per cent or by any amount for that matter. The cost can be charged up immediately to the consumers in their electrical bills. Every extra dollar paid to the electrical workers by the employers will be paid in fact household consumer. And most of those consumers are earning far less money every month than the electrical workers are earning now without any increase.

The strikers are thus attemptingto place a heavy new burden on the ordinary people of British Columbia, on other workers. This is not a strike against a company; it is a strike against the people as a whole. If it succeeds it is chiefly the poor people who will feel its effects.

A conciliation board found unanimously that the electrical workers should receive an increase of 19 per cent, which is far larger than any increase recently granted to any British Columbia union. That increase would increase the operating costs of the B.C. Electric by $600,-000 a year and construction costs by $700,000 a year at the present rate of activity. The total increase of $1,300,000 would be handed on to the consumers.

In demanding more than wice generous concessions recommended by the conciliation board and accepted by the employers, the electrical workers seek a wage of $3.381/2 per hour, exclusive of fringe benefits. The highest wage paid for similar work in other parts of Canada is $2.28, in Toronto.

Electricians' wages already exceed those of comparable trades. For example, plumbers and sheet metal workers are paid $2.70 per hour, structural iron workers $2.55, carpenters, $2.51. These workers know that if the costs of doing business

THE ELECTRICIANS OF BRIT- are too high their employers will curtail employment or close down. The electricians know that the B.C. Electric cannot reduce its operations or close down. Therefore, it is supposed, this public utility can be coerced. The public can pay the bill.

> But no great strike ever succeeds if the public resists it, as the pulp and paper workers found a few weeks ago when their strike failed, after great losses to them and to in dustry. In this case, we think, the public at large will be strongly opposed to wage demands far in excess of the public's average income, de-mands that the public itself must meet directly in its electrical bills. The workers of most unions will take the same view since they are receiving far less wages than the electricians and they are consumers of elec

Yet today the great exporting industries of British Columbia are in difficulties because they face new and drastic competition in the world market. Already they have partially priced themselves out of the market. If their costs are increased they will further price themselves out of the market and the workers will then have priced themselves out of jobs.

The present unemployment of over half a million Canadians shows where this process leads. Must we pursue it to the point of a general depression? Is the Canadian economy, depending largely on exports, to be gutted by impossible costs while the consumer is asked to pay impossible prices? Or will the workers see that their own interests depend upon the ability of industry to oper-

First in History

WITH COURAGE AND DETERmination that were not daunted by weather, fantastically difficult terrain or even the adverse advice of other experts, Dr. Vivian Fuchs has brought his party successfully across the Antarctic continent-the first such journey in history. He has well earned the praises now flooding upon him, including royal recognition in a knighthood. As the Queen's message to Dr. Fuchs said, "You have made a notable contribution to scientific knowledge and have succeeded in a great enterprise.

One of the prime purposes of the expedition was to measure the thickness of ice over the continent and from this determine the contour of the earth beneath. Apparently this has been successfully carried out.

Fuchs had planned to complete the 2,100-mile trans-polar crossing in 100 days. He arrived at Scott Base, his destination, on the 99th day, over-riding the predictions of those, including Sir Edmund Hillary, who had said winter weather would overtake him and make a rescue mission necessary.

Although operating with modern mechanical equipment, Dr. Fuchs has well upheld the traditions of the early polar explorers such as Scott and Shackleton, who fought the miles on foot with dog teams. He calculated his chances, made his plansand won. In the concluding words of the Queen's message: "Well done."

Narrower Gate to University!

DR. MILTON EISENHOWER, president of Johns Hopkins University, has added his voice to those of others calling for proficiency in English, in a foreign language, mathematics, natural science and history as a requisite for entrance to university.

He makes one qualification. He would require such standards only for the 100 best universities in his country.

Further than that, Dr. Eisenhower would establish a terminal year course in Grade 13 which would give students not going to college opportunity to study vocational agriculture, home economics, typing, stenography and commercial courses which, he believes, weaken the or-dinary high school program.

The terminal course idea is of pletely substantial local interest on two By grounds. First, Victoria is conducting an experiment at one junior high school in its effectiveness at lower grades. Secondly, the plan touches a problem of growing interest to teachers here. Many of them are asking if the "general" course, which does not lead to university entrance, is not a deleterious influence on the high school which prepares students for higher study.

Agreement Needed

MR. ERIC HARDY, WHOSE firm, Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, recommended amalgamation for Greater Victoria after a scientific survey here, has offered some more sound advice to this community.

Before a single municipal govern-ment could be established here successfully, he says, a sufficient body of public opinion favorable to the idea would have to be created.

In other words, until there is a will to this end, the way should not be trodden. That makes sense. The question of unifying municipal government and public services is com-plex enough without being further complicated by the activities of amalgamation's opponents.

Perhaps the day when sufficient favorable public opinion has been aroused is not so far off. Admittedly there are strong pockets of paroch-lalism which obstruct progress in this direction. But the champions of parochialism are fighting a losing

They are losing because evolu-They are losing because evolu-tion and the force of events are imposing metropolitan services on Greater Victoria, whether its com-ponent parts like it or not.

That is a development made more evident every time a special board embracing representation from all municipalities takes over a job which the individual municipalities handle ineffectively, if they handle it at all.

Conceivably the next move in that direction will be a metropolitan parks board with ability to iron out some of the tangles so obvious in the management of recreation areas.

Nobody's Baby Now.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Over the Cliff

STATESMAN of Social Credit approached me at a social gathering re cently with a certain air of sympathy for my misfortune and an ill-concealed contempt for my ideas. I deeply appre-ciated his friendliness, and his contempt did not bruise me deeply. I have grown callous with age. But his question perhaps will interest the public, for I hold the verse, old-fashioned opinion that the public is interested in its own business, especially in its own individual in-

A year ago, said this

Hutchison statesman with a mixture of sympathy and contempt. I had written various pieces, among them a piece in a national magazine, advocating high interest rates and what he called tight money. That is partly true. I advocated high interest rates but there never was any tight money in Canada—never, that is to say, ney than the corresponding supply of goods.

WELL, said the statesman, what did I W think, this spring, of what I had said last spring? His look clearly implied that I should make a public repentance of my errors and apologize for helping to ruin the country.

Naturally, I was flattered to hear that anyone should think the public listens to anything I say but I declined to make any apology. If there was any error in our national policy a year ago it was the failure to make interest rates sufficiently high and money tight enough.

These things are difficult to explain at a time when business has declined, when many politicians are quite bewildered, and their bewilderment is spread by the solemn nonsense of the election

One need not expect any sensible pub lic discussion when even the Prime Minister thinks or, at any rate, says that high interest rates produced the recesee in Canada had miraculously reduced the price of metals and the sale of our timber products in the world market). Sensible discussion will not be resumed until

THE plain fact, however, is that things have turned out precisely as the managers of the nation's money predicted a year ago. They warned us that the inflationary fever of last spring could go only so far and would be followed by a sudden chill. Precisely that occurred and business fell. I doubt that any economic progressis has ever been so comnomic prognosis has ever been so com-pletely and quickly vindicated.

By allowing interest rates to rise, by refusing to expand the money supply, what was the Bank of Canada trying to Was it trying to produce a depres-? Was it conspiring to ruin the nation? Was it enforcing a kind of inspired sadism to punish the human race? Were its officials suffering from some mysterious psychotic disease and practising an official masochism?

Practising an official masochism?
Was everybody crazy except Messrs.
Diefenbaker and Bennett, who agreed that all the country needed was some more money and another shot of inflation?

NO, the Bank of Canada and the IN former government were merely trying to cool out a boom which, if it continued, must produce a bust. Of course they failed. They were bound to fail. The fever already had gone too far, in Canada and other countries, to be arrested painlessly.

Moreover, the control of the money system of itself was quite inadequate to control the non-monetary pressures

No bank or government could control the upward surge of wages which were raising prices. No monetary policy could contain industry's demand for capital and the public's demands for goods. And so, inevitably here, as in the United States, inflation reached the point where buyers resisted high prices and reduced their purchases. The law of supply and demand caught up with us. The recession followed, exactly as the money managers expected.

BUT to blame them for this result is like blaming a man who warns his neighbor not to jump over a cliff. If the neighbor insists on jumping over a cliff that is his affair. We live in a free society which has made a hobby of jumping over cliffs.

It has not necessarily jumped over its last cliff yet, however. The leap taken in the last year was a relatively small one and the shock so far has been minor, except for its immediate victims, the unemployed. A higher cliff is just ahead of us. If we continue to raise prices sufficiently, we can easily leap into an abyss. And if we do we shall blame everyone but ourselves.

WHAT, then, actually happened in the miliar thing-we expanded industry, in certain fields, faster than any immediately available market either at home or abroad; in the course of this too-rapid expansion we overbuilt our plant and nust grow into it, with a certain time lag, also with growing pains; and in this scramble to build too fast we raised our costs higher than the traffic would bear,

Canada and outside it.

I was unable to explain these things to the Social Credit statesman, not wishing to spoil a friendly social gathering, but what I was saying a year ago (not from my ignorance but from the knowledge of educated men) was perfectly true. My mistake then was not to overestimate but to underestimate the danger. Perhaps we are all making the same mistake this spring.

Tax the Mines

Re Mr. Kenny's article "Make Them Tax-Free." "As Our Readers See It,"

With all due respect to Mr. Kenny, is he gullible enough to swallow Mr. Pearson's election propaganda in regards to giving young married couples three years tax-free?

In the first place young couples are in a better position to pay taxes than those approaching old age. Most young couples both work until the baby is due.

Furthermore why in heaven's name should new mines be tax free for three years? After all I firmly believe the majority shareholder is a company or person with ample means and political pull—and I am not referring to our minister of mines—who gets on the gravy train, buy shares tax free and sell out at a high profit before taxes are due, to some hard working stiff trying to invest his hard-earned savings for his old age and generally winds up with worthless stock

I say tax the new mines and give the revenue to the poor old age pensioner who lost his savings and who worked hard all his life to make our lot easier. HARRY MAAT. 403 Hillside,

Bumbling to the Summit

JUDGING by surface signs the present state of Western preparations for the famous summit meeting would really be funny if it were not so frightening. And this judgment will hardly be altered by any public East-West pre-summit wrangle about the summit agenda. In the offing, is the kind of encounter between the leaders of the two great world blocs that can easily turn into a major disaster, as the last summit meeting very amply proved. Everyone agrees that the meeting has to be held, although, no one knows exactly why. And this is really the here in London. array of experts to consider and recom-mend approaches to the various subjects that may turn up on a summit agenda. The consensus of the experts was plain-The British go tively summed up to this reporter in a somewhat plaintive remark about these selected wise men.

"Every single one of them is strongly convinced that his particular subject is the one subject that ought not even to be mentioned at the summit."

The British government's political leaders are sure, on the other hand, that there is at least one subject that has to be discussed with the Soviets—the subject of nuclear disarmament.

Sound Instinct

This is unavoidable because this coun try is increasingly gripped by a blind, instinctive, overwhelming longing for any kind of escape whatever from the nuclear nightmare in which the whole world now lives.

The instinct, God knows, is sound. But the response to it bereabouts more and more resembles a prisoner in solitary confinement beating his head on the door of his cell.

In these circumstances, no British leader can take the obviously sensible line that there is no use talking about disarmament until the Soviet chieftains show some signs of willingness to accept serious disarmament controls. For public consumption at least, the line has to be taken that disarmament negotiations ought to be renewed at all costs.
But even on disarmament no clear and decided line of policy is discoverable.

The defence ministries tend to look with profound disfavor upon the lengthening list of schemes for local disarmament and "disengagement" in Central Europe. But the Foreign Office, remem-bering Sir Anthony Eden's previous position on this point, is inclined to the yiew that the so-called Rapacki Plan proposed by the Poles has reached the stage where it must at least be talked about.

Again, the British are vastly more enthis year than they were last year. After all, their own nuclear program is now so advanced that they will become approxi-mately full members of the nuclear club before any cutoff of tests can take effect.

Sickening

It is sickening to know of Socred backbenchers Wm. Speare and Dan Campbell speaking in ringing terms of excuses and praise for Attorney-General

We know that the sordid circumstances recently revealed under oath in the case were given to Mr. Bonner December 1955, followed by an all night filibuster session of the House demanding a proper enquiry, also followed by the awful accusations made by Mr. Sommers under the protection of the Legis-lature (at the time of his resignation as minister) against reputable businesses etc., also his abortive two year case against Mr. Sturdy with its many exother disclosures that were made by Deane Finlayson, Geo. Gregory, etc., and Sommers lost citation for contempt of court against Mr. Finlayson and B.C. newspapers—and yet nothing was done by Mr. Bonner or the Government until finally the pressure of public opin-ion forced them to order an enquiry.

To liken the RCMP and its 1956 report in any way to Hitler's Gestapo is the height of presumption and nonsense. They can fool some of the people some of the time but now they are really awakened to the serious implications involved and have lost faith in the Gov-ernment. Nothing like the conduct of the so called Sommers case has ever oc-curred in any previous Canadian Govern-lieving that we may "sit down with the Reds" and "find permanent peace." Permanent peace, or any kind of peace, with anti-God communism is impossible. The only road to peace is to be found in the Bible. The prophet Isaiah says: "There is no peace, saith the Lord, unto the (Isa. 48.22). And again he says (32.17) "The work of righteousness shall be peace, and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance for ever." Righteousness means right relationship be-tween God and Man. Virtuous fear of the inevitable row, with the French is battling with powerful temptation to end tests and close the nuclear club.

the club door in the face of France, with

The Soviets would close the club with shouts of joy. And this would be a summit meeting result to please the British public who would not be displeased by the inevitable tantrums in Paris.

Just to make matters considerably worse, the Tory party is in fairly desper-ate straits after the Rochdale election; and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan has frankly told his restive supporters that he is building all his hopes for a comeback on the prospect of some sort of success at the summit.

Great Temptation

The temptation to grasp at anything that can be represented as a "success" will therefore be dangerously great.

So far as one can judge from this distance, moreover, the apparent disorder here only mirrors the disorder in Washington. This is indicated by the state department's decision to carry allied summit preparations in the NATO permanent council. The council's dominating figure,

NATO Secretary General Paul Henri Spaak, is a brilliant and dedicated man. But his ideas about what should be said and done at the summit are not at all the ideas of the British and American governments.

Preparing for the summit in the NATO council further means preparing for the summit in a quite remarkably cumbersome committee. And in this process, the U.S. representative will be the American ambassador to NATO, Randolph Burgess, whose chief recommendation for his enormous responsibility was the Eisenhower administration's always tremendous desire to please Burgess' former boss, George Humphrey.

Faint Hope

In this generally gloomy prospect, there is only one chink of possible hope. This consists of very faint but strik-ingly interesting hints of super-secret

Soviet-American pre-summit talks, Assume that such talks are taking place, and have revealed the possibility of some sort of fruitful understanding. Assume further that they are so secret that almost no one here in London but the Prime Minister himself has been told

Then the Prime Minister's otherwise mystifying promise to his party is explained, and all the signs of Western disorder are transformed into mere surface symptoms. But if there is no such un seen diplomatic hat from which a glori ous rabbit may later be pulled, it car only be said that the West is bumbling to the summit in a way that almost en

A CCORDING to a widely accepted concept, the English "pub" is the poor man's

There the person of modest means go for an evening, buy his pint of 'arl and 'arf, or what suits his fancy, and pass time in friendly discussion with his fellows, join in a game of darts or shove-ha'penny, and make his visit a relatively quiet social occasion. He may even enjoy a little music if the pub contains a plano and someone who can play it.

I have seen such pubs, though it was 25 years ago Stott and they may have changed since then.

The image came to mind when Mr. Harry the image came to mind when Mr. Harr The image came to mind when Mr. Harry Stevens was combing over British Columbia's liquor laws six years ago, and preparing a report with recommendations on which legislative amendments were based.

By one of those amendments, beer parlors hereabouts were changed to public houses. At least the name was changed.

AS THEY WERE

Beer parlors bore the brunt, at that time, of some harsh comment. They were pictured as factories where the sole objective seemed to be the dispensing of as much beer as posselble in the shortest time to as many adults as could be crowded into them.

A booming economy and a swollen postwar population guaranteed the crowds. Tables were spaced as closely as they could be and still allow highly-adept waiters to thread their ways among them. Critics contended they were noisy, smoke-

filled halls of Babel where any attempt at conversation had to be raised to a strident

And then, by act of the Legislature, the beer parlors became public houses.

Now, say critics, they are crowded halls of Babel where any attempt at conversation has to be raised to a strident shout. If they are smoke-filled, that may not be noticeable, since a number of them go in for subdued lighting which creates a permanent gloom.

Not solely in the interests of research a friend and I dropped into one of the city's public houses after work last week. We're inclined to agree with the critics. If this was a poor man's club, the only justification for ealling it such lay in the application of the adjective "poor" to the noun "club."

AS THEY ARE

I'm not sure that you can blame the proprietor for this condition. He's a business-man selling beer. The more he sells, the better his business. Certainly the decor of the premises seemed adequate. The chairs were comfortable enough, the tables sturdy. There just happened to be too many of them, though not enough to meet the needs of patrons thronging through the door.

The tables were so close together that you shared your conversation with your neighbors. If one of them had a strong voice—and one next to us had he took the conversation away

The service was adequate. You called for a beer and got two. That seemed acceptable enough. The glasses hold six ounces, and on the strength of the beverage two is not too

But if there is any difference between the old beer parlor and the new public house, apart from a possible dressing up of the premises, it isn't discernible to the casual

Now it may be very improper to form a judgment on the basis of one after work to a single establishment

On the other hand, if that experience is On the other hand, it that experience is common, then the purposes of the public house seem identical to those of the beer parlor—it's a place where a person goes to guzzle beer and where an operator seeks to make his profit, which is reasonable

And in any case, poor man's club or no poor man's club, nobody forces anyone into

Doctors' Dilemma

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic, and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

I'm sorry to say that in any large clinic one can see quite a few patients who have what we doctors call an iatrogenic disease, or a disease produced by a physician's frighten-ing remark. All of us who have practiced medicine for years and have achieved some wisdom, try very hard always to guard our tongue and not say things that will put unfortunate ideas into patients' heads, and yet, with all our care, we often do this. Naturally, we're not so likely to do this with people who have good sense, who are not too worrisome who trust us, and who can be reassured. The people who get into terrible trouble are those who are abnormally anxious, and who, when once frightened, cannot be reassured by any-

To show what I mean; a woman who had poor nervous inheritance and who had always been a terrible worrier got by all right until she was about 40, when she got the type of cold which causes glands in the sides of the neck to swell. Unfortunately, then, the physician whom she consulted had not yet learned to guard his tongue, and, thinking of the various diseases that might con-ceivably have caused her glands to swell in this way, asked her if she had ever had syphilis. Although she was a fine woman who had always been a devoted wife the idea then put into her head completely wrecked her nervous system. She became terribly un-happy and depressed and started going from one doctor to another demanding that she be treated for syphilis. Even when repeated tests for syphilis showed she did not have the disease, she still said to the dectors, "Go ahead and give me the treatment anyway." Eventually, she became so psychotic that she almost needed hospital care.

One day a man came in, skin and bones, because for weeks he had been living on nothing but a little milk each day. I asked him why he had been starving himself and he said because he had always been a terrible worrier about his health—always fearing that his few symptoms of indigestion must be due to some awful disease in his abdomen. Then one day he got the utterly preposterous idea that since he sometimes took a glass of wine that since he sometimes took a glass of wine for dinner he should have an alcoholic gastritis. Most unfortunately he talked a gastroscopist into looking into his stomach with a lighted tube. The gastroscopist then reported that the lining of the stomach was per-fectly normal and there was no ulcer.

However, unfortunately, he thought aloud and remarked that there was one spot where the stomach was bleeding because it had been scratched by the rubber tip of the instrument. To the overly-worrisome man, the thought that he was bleeding from his stomach was devastating. Because he felt he must have a terrible ulcer, he put himself on a pure milk diet. I had a hard time to talk him out of his idea and to get him started eating normally

We doctors are constantly being faced with a terrible problem and to this day I don't know always how to handle it. In will come a man who I soon see is a terrible worrier without good sense about it. As I go over him from head to foot, giving him the thorough examination he wants, I may find in his elec-trocardiogram typical signs of what we doctors call a bundle branch block. Apparently, plugged up, and as a result the impulse that goes to some part of the heart to make it contract no longer went through normally. But this part of the heart was so small and so unimportant that its loss never bothered the man (and it probably never will).

BAD NEWS ADDICTS

. Now, if I tell the man what I have foundeven if I spend half an hour trying to explain to him that it has no great significance and he must not worry about it—I'm pretty sure he will become so badly upset that he will start going from doctor to doctor desperately trying to find some man who will scare the life out

But to get back to my difficulty. If I do not tell the man about his bundle branch block, and the next doctor who examines him tells him about it, then, naturally, he will think me either stupid or incompetent or careless, and for the rest of his days he may keep telling people what a poor specimen of a doc tor he found me to be.

Evidence Hints Co-Conspirator

Monday counsel for Pacific suggested to Eversfield that the bookkeeper tried to get $10,000 from Pacific for documents he collected while in its employ, then sought a life partnership in the lumber concern.

Eversfield, on the stand for the sixth day, emphatically enied both suggestions.

Photostats and originals of the documents removed by Eversfield from Pacific's files when he left in March, 1955, form the basis of the Crown's case.

MEET 22 CANADIANS WHO WILL GET THE BIG THINGS DONE!

A STRONG

Diefenbaker government

Today B.C.—and Canada—stand on the brink of really big things. In the words of the Prime Minister, "everything without regard to limit' will be done to provide work for Canadians and an opportunity for the better things of life-through vigorous development of our resources, increased foreign trade, social security and moral leadership among the nations.

The continuance of these vital tasks is the pledge of your Diefenbaker Government, which has already fulfilled so many of its 1957 promises: to taxpayers, home-builders, senior citizens, agriculture, industry . . . and YOU.

The radio sat around the shop for awhile, but eventually was sold. Mr. Michael's share was $30, but where was Mr. Michael?

"I had moved on," he said. "That was the time of the hungry '30s, and times were grim. I finally wound up in California where I went into contracting for the army and nave, but I retired to Victoria and do. and navy, but I retired to Victoria and do a little building and remodelling to pass the learned that in the intervening time, Mr. Kilcoyne had missed no opportunity to find "David Michael." If ever he found himself in a strange city, he would call all the Michaels in the telephone book and ask them if they had ever left a radio in a shop in Maidstone.

"That was the telephone call I got Feb. 7." Mr. Michael said. "Mr. Kilcoyne told me he had retired to Victoria and bought an apartment at 238 Douglas Street. I went down today to see him, and he gave me a cheque for $30."

"It's the darndest story of honesty and determination to close an account that I know. I thought it was worth passing on."

Former Victorians. Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Johnston, now living in Seattle, are leaving this month for Europe where they will spend the spring and summer. After extended visits in Copenhagen, Paris and Brussels they will go to London from where they will tour the British Isles. In July they will attend a Buckingham Palace garden party. The Johnston's daughter, Dr. Kathleen A. Johnston, who was on the faculty of the University of Washington School of Home Economics for six years is now a professor at Purdue University. She received her doctorate in home economics at Cornell.

and Sandra Begg.

Following the premiere Mr. and Mrs. Jack Barraclough entertained at a late-evening reception in the Oak Bay Beach the three of hearts and West's king wins the trick. Another heart is played and South is in. and king of trumps and drops the queen from the West hand. Now all he needs to make his contract is a club finesse toes he will realize that holds the ten of clubs. Hence and leads the jack of clubs. Hence, he goes over to dummy Now look at the East and West hands and you see that South has brought his contract home.

If East ducks, South just lets the jack ride. If East covers, South takes with the king and finesses see cessfully against West's ten.

TOLL TV IN CANADA—It may come as a shock, but Canadians are a lot closer to pay TV than their American cousins—at least a form thereof, According to reports last week only the production of a complicated "unscrambling" coin box stands between us and toll TV. Eugene Fitzgibbons, president of Trans-Canada Telemeter, asserted that a break may come within a month, then actual production of the boxes could begin and the company would go ahead with laying its cable to transmit the offerings for sale. with laying its cable to transmit the offerings for sale.

"By laying cables we do not require permission to use the airwaves under the broadcasting act," Mr. Fitz-gibbons explained. "The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, although not against toll TV, cannot permit it because of the single station market across Canada." TV TEE-HEES

IF TRANS-CANADA Telemeters lays cables to put its plan into operation the Canadian viewer will simply deposit half-a-dollar or a dollar in a coin box andsit back in shis home to view a first-run movie. The cable reception SCHOOLU CON W Sen's forderen Com would in no way inter-fere with the regular "You let Cheyenne fight his own battles!" Promoters of the own battles! unique box-office TV present an alluring vista of possible advantages to the home viewer, such as some live showings of Broadway plays, ballet, opera, educational programs and sports events. However, Mr. Fitzgibbons admits that the bulk of the pay diet would be movies.

The motivating force behind pay TV is the impressive fact that Canadians and Americans are nations of movie-watchers. According to a recent research report in the U.S. of the 1,085,400,000 hours devoted to TV watching during one representative week, some 400, 300,000 hours were spent watching movies.

Mr. Gregory said he had never insisted that the RCMP report of Inspector W. J. Butler be made public as claimed by the attorney-general.

"We asked that it either be tabled or acted upon," Mr. Gregory said.

The attorney-general had attempted to persuade the public that the report was a "white wash."

The facts of the return are people who elect the members. Mr. Kiernan accused Gordon Gibson of taking advantage of legislative immunity in making his original allegations of "money talks" in the issuance of forest management licences. The House sat from 2 p.m. till way past midnight this morning discussing estimates for the Attorney-General Robert Bonner's department and this evoked a complaint from Arthur Turner, the usually genial CCF member for Vancouver East.

"Many of us have to attend committees late this morning," he said. "We cannot bring fresh minds to our work when we have to sit this late."

Most other members felt the same, but the government would not be rushed.

The steady drone of esti-mates, starting with the at-torney-general's salary and office expenses, provoked a wide variety of debatable top-ics ranging from the sale of liquor to Indians to safe driv-ing and a demand for the attorney-general's resignation.

The image came to mind when Mr. Harry Stevens was combing over British Columbia's liquor laws six years ago, and preparing a report with recommendations on which legislative amendments were based.

By one of those amendments, beer parlors hereabouts were changed to public houses. At least the name was changed.

AS THEY WERE

Beer parlors bore the brunt, at that time, of some harsh comment. They were pictured as factories where the sole objective seemed be the dispensing of as much beer as possible in the shortest time to as many adults as could be crowded into them.

A booming economy and a swollen post-war population guaranteed the crowds. Tables were spaced as closely as they could be and still allow highly adept waiters to thread their ways among them.
Critics contended they were noisy, smoke-filled halls of Babel where any attempt at conversation had to be raised to a strident And then, by act of the Legislature, the

beer parlors became public houses.

Now, say critics, they are crowded halls of Babel where any attempt at conversation has to be raised to a strident shout. If they

YOUR HEALTH

Doctors' Dilemma

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic, and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

I'm sorry to say that in any large clinic one can see quite a few patients who have what we doctors call an iatrogenic disease, or a disease produced by a physician's frighten-ing remark. All of us who have practiced medicine for years and have achieved some wisdom, try very hard always to guard our tongue and not say things that will put unfortunate ideas' into patients' heads, and yet, with all our care, we often do this. Naturally, we're not so likely to do this with people who have good sense.

Alvarez who are not too worrisome

who trust us, and who can be reassured. The people who get into terrible trouble are those who are abnormally anxious, and who when once frightened, cannot be reassured by any-

To show what I mean: a woman who had a poor nervous inheritance and who had always been a terrible worrier got by all right until she was about 40, when she got the type of cold which causes glands in the sides of the neck to swell. Unfortunately, then, the physician whom she consulted had vet learned to guard his tongue, and, thinking of the various diseases that might conceivably have caused her glands to swell in way, asked her if she had ever had syphilis. Although she was a fine woman who had always been a devoted wife the idea then put into her head completely wrecked her nervous system. She became terribly unhappy and depressed and started going from one doctor to another demanding that she be treated for syphilis. Even when repeated tests for syphilis showed she did not have the disease, she still said to the doctors, "Go ahead and give me the treatment anyway." Eventually, she became so psychotic that she almost needed hospital care.

MILK DIET

One day a man came in, skin and bones, because for weeks he had been living on nothing but a little milk each day. I asked him why he had been starving himself and he said because he had always been a terrible worrier about his health-always fearing that are smoke-filled, that may not be noticeable ince a number of them go in for subdued lighting which creates a permanent gloom.

Not solely in the interests of research, a friend and I dropped into one of the city's public houses after work last week. We're inclined to agree with the critics. If this was a poor man's club, the only justification for calling it such lay in the application of the adjective "poor" to the noun "club,"

AS THEY ARE

I'm not sure that you can blame the profor this condition. He's a business man selling beer. The more he sells, the better his business. Certainly the decor of the premises seemed adequate. The chairs were comfortable enough, the tables sturdy. There just happened to be too many of them, though not enough to meet the needs of patrons thronging through the door.

The tables were so close together that you shared your conversation with your neighbors. If one of them had a strong voice-and one next to us had he took the conversation away from you.

The service was adequate. You called for a beer and got two. That seemed acceptable enough. The glasses hold six ounces, and on the strength of the beverage two is not too

But if there is any difference between the old beer parlor and the new public house, apart from a possible dressing up of the premises, it isn't discernible to the casual

Now it may be very improper to form a judgment on the basis of one after work jaunt to a single establishment.

On the other hand, if that experience is ommon, then the purposes of the public house seem identical to those of the beer it's a place where a person goes to guzzle beer and where an operator seeks to make his profit, which is reasonable.

his few symptoms of indigestion must be due to some awful disease in his abdomen. Then one day he got the utterly preposterous idea that since he sometimes took a glass of wine for dinner he should have an alcoholic gastritis. Most unfortunately he talked a gas-troscopist into looking into his stomach with a lighted tube. The gastroscopist then re ported that the lining of the stomach was perfectly normal and there was no ulcer.

However, unfortunately, he thought aloud and remarked that there was one spot where the stomach was bleeding because it had been scratched by the rubber tip of the instrument To the overly-worrisome man, the thought that he was bleeding from his stomach was devas-Because he felt he must have a terrible ulcer, he put himself on a pure milk diet. I had a hard time to talk him out of his idea and to get him started eating normally

We doctors are constantly being faced with a terrible problem and to this day I don't know always how to handle it. In will come a man who I soon see is a terrible worrier without good sense about it. As I go over him from head to foot, giving him the thorough examination he wants, I may find in his electrocardiogram typical signs of what we doctors call a bundle branch block. Apparently, some time in the past, a little blood vessel plugged up, and as a result the impulse that goes to some part of the heart to make it con-tract no longer went through normally. But this part of the heart was so small and so un-important that its loss never bothered the man (and it probably never will).

BAD NEWS ADDICTS

Now, if I tell the man what I have foundeven if I spend half an hour trying to explain to him that it has no great significance and he must not worry about it—I'm pretty sure he will become so badly upset that he will start going from doctor to doctor desperately trying to find some man who will scare the life out

But to get back to my difficulty. If I do not tell the man about his bundle branch block, and the next doctor who examines him tells him about it, then, naturally, he will think me either stupid or incompetent or careless, and for the rest of his days he may keep telling people what a poor specimen of a doctor he found me to be.

Thoughtfulness for others is basic with a life insurance agent. It is part and parcel of his daily work. Wherever he lives he tries to be a good neighbour.

He is a good citizen too. Whenever there is an important project going forward in his community you will find him doing his share.

Increasing numbers of life insurance agents are taking special training courses for their own advancement and to increase their usefulness to those they serve.

Some seven million Canadians now own life insurance policies . . . proof of their confidence in the life underwriter and the important service he offers.

CANADIANS WHO WILL GET THE BIG THINGS DONE!

A STRONG

Diefenbaker government

Today B.C.—and Canada—stand on the brink of really big things. In the words of the Prime Minister, "everything without regard to limit" will be done to provide work for Canadians and an opportunity for the better things of life—through vigorous development of our resources, increased foreign trade, social security and moral leadership among the nations.

The continuance of these vital tasks is the pledge of your Diefenbaker Government, which has already fulfilled so many of its 1957 promises: to taxpayers, home-builders, senior citizens, agriculture, industry...and YOU.

Now let's get moving—with these 22 outstanding members of John Diefenbaker's B.C. team!

Loan Exhibits Bring Recognition And Understanding to Many Artists

The far-reaching effects of picture loan exhibitions—such as the Women's Committee of the Greater Victoria Art Gallery sponsor in Victoria once a month—was presented briefly at the committee's annual spring luncheon Monday, by curator Colin Graham.

Work of Canadian artists was being greatly benefited through such loans, Mr. Graham pointed

"I know it was," Mr. Gregory retogled.
"You know perfectly well, my friend, the first time it was offered was in your letter to me (two months later)," the attorney general said.

In a later exchange, Mr. Bonner said "Why the statutory declaration did not have the documentary evidence appended to it, I cannot explain."

"It will," Mr. Gregory said.
"The material was not appended because it was feared the attorney general might not do what he should have done,.. but it was offered."

Girl Charged

WINNIPEG (CP) -A 19year-old Indian girl today was charged with murder in the death of an older sister in their wilderness shack, 235 miles northeast of Winnipeg, on Feb. 15. The charge was read to Rita Dunsford of the Little Grand Rapid Indian Reserve, after a coroner's jury found that Mrs. Marie-Theresa Pascal, 28, died from the effects of being struck on the neck with the 30-inch barrel of a shotgun by Miss Dunsford.

Power rationing ended in Newfoundland's capital Monday night but hundreds of people remained without electricity in the wake of last weekend's sleet storm which snapped transmission lines.

Many of the city's 70,000 residents remained huddled in front of fireplaces and cooked food over gasoline camp stoves. At night they lit candles or kerosene lamps. Temperatures have been in the low 30s.
